Tohoku University Graduate School of International Cultural Studies (GSICS)

Application for 2-year Master's Program for the Academic Year of 2022 (Beginning in October, 2022)

I. Aim

The aim of this program (here after, IGPLS) is to promote interdisciplinary education and research concerning human language from multiple perspectives of linguistics, psychology, brain science and information science. Based on recent development in linguistics and other relevant disciplines, our program seeks to provide students with a comprehensive understanding of linguistics and language sciences, with a focus on theoretical linguistics, language acquisition, psycholinguistics and neurolinguistics. The program will be conducted in collaboration with the Research Center for Language, Brain and Cognition, which is affiliated with the Tohoku University Graduate School of International Cultural Studies (GSICS).

Degree offered: “Master of International Cultural Studies” or “Master of Interdisciplinary Studies”

II. Admission Policy

The Tohoku University Graduate School of International Cultural Studies provides students with the ability to think and analyze in an international and interdisciplinary manner, advanced foreign language skills, and a high level of specialized knowledge and clear awareness of issues in the following three areas: (1) diverse regional cultures of Japan and other areas seen from an international perspective, (2) global issues concerning the environment, resources, and a sustainable society in which all humankind can coexist, and (3) language underlying international society. Our educational goal is to train professionals, teachers, and researchers who can play an active role on a global scale with their rich education, international perspective, and high ideal of contributing to the stewardship and development of human civilization and culture. To achieve this goal, we seek students who have clear aspirations of becoming creative researchers or professionals and are active in the international community, equipped with flexible thinking skills, broad academic knowledge, and advanced language skills.

In admitting students, we have entrance examinations in the following categories: general selection, special selection for international applicants applying from overseas, selection for those advancing to the doctoral program from our MA program (only for the three-year doctoral program), entrance examination for the Global Governance and Sustainable Development Program, and entrance examination for the International Graduate Program in Language Sciences. These are used to select applicants who have the advanced abilities and qualities needed to conduct research in line with the educational ideals/goals mentioned above.

In the entrance examination for the International Graduate Program in Language Sciences, applicants are evaluated based on a review of their application materials and an interview. We examine whether they have the high-level English proficiency needed to study in the program (as English is the medium of instruction), and the specialized knowledge and ability to think interdisciplinarily required in the field of language sciences. These are given roughly equal weight.

We expect students to acquire basic knowledge in their areas of expertise, basic foreign language skills, and skills in writing logically before their enrollment.
