

Graduate Program in Global Governance and Sustainable Development (G2SD), Tohoku University Graduate School of International Cultural Studies (GSICS)

Application for 2-year Master's Program for the Academic Year of 2023
(Beginning in April 2023)

I. Aim

The aim of this graduate program is to enhance students' ability to advance global governance and sustainable development. Since the challenges associated with these tasks are complex and inter-linked, what is needed to deal with them are the abilities to question conventional wisdom and to design innovative analytical frameworks on the basis of inter-disciplinary knowledge. This program intends to develop such abilities through a combination of critical reviews of theories, on the one hand, and problem-oriented empirical studies, on the other.

II. Admission Policy

The Tohoku University Graduate School of International Cultural Studies provides students with the ability to think and analyze in an international and interdisciplinary manner, advanced foreign language skills, and a high level of specialized knowledge and clear awareness of issues in the following three areas: (1) diverse regional cultures of Japan and other areas seen from an international perspective, (2) global issues concerning the environment, resources, and a sustainable society in which all humankind can coexist, and (3) language underlying international society. Our educational goal is to train professionals, teachers, and researchers who can play an active role on a global scale with their rich education, international perspective, and high ideal of contributing to the stewardship and development of human civilization and culture. To achieve this goal, we seek students who have clear aspirations of becoming creative researchers or professionals and are active in the international community, equipped with flexible thinking skills, broad academic knowledge, and advanced language skills.

In admitting students, we have entrance examinations in the following categories: general selection, special selection for international applicants applying from overseas, selection for those advancing to the doctoral program from our MA program (only for the three-year doctoral program), entrance examination for the Global Governance and Sustainable Development Program, and entrance examination for the International Graduate Program in Language Sciences. These are used to select applicants who have the advanced abilities and qualities needed to conduct research in line with the educational ideals/goals mentioned above.

The two-year Master's program

In the category of general selection, applicants are evaluated based on (1) their scores in a written test to evaluate their knowledge about their specialized fields and (2) an interview and a review of their application materials, which are to assess their motivation, research plans, and foreign language skills needed for research, among other things. These are given roughly equal weight.

In the category of special selection for international applicants applying from overseas, applicants who are recommended by their home universities are evaluated based on (1) a review of their application materials and (2) an interview. We assess their specialized knowledge, their ability to think logically and express their ideas in writing, and their motivation and research plans. These are given roughly equal weight.

In the entrance examination for the Global Governance and Sustainable Development Program, applicants are evaluated based on (1) a review of their application materials and (2) an interview. We examine whether they have the high-level English proficiency needed to study in the program where English is the medium of instruction, the academic motivation and thinking ability to tackle today's social issues, and the ability to set a practical problem to solve. These are given roughly equal weight.

In the entrance examination for the International Graduate Program in Language Sciences, applicants are evaluated based on (1) a review of their application materials and (2) an interview. We examine whether they have the high-level English proficiency needed to study in the program (as English is the medium of instruction), and the specialized knowledge and ability to think interdisciplinarily required in the field of language sciences. These are given roughly equal weight.

We expect students to possess basic knowledge in their areas of expertise, basic foreign language skills, and skills in writing logically, before their enrollment.

III. Curriculum

All courses in the Graduate Program in Global Governance and Sustainable Development are conducted in English. A minimum of 30 units of course work and completion of a Master's thesis are required for the Master's degree.

IV. Degree

The degree offered is "Master of International Cultural Studies" or "Master of Interdisciplinary Studies." Students will also be offered a certificate recognizing completion of the program.
